

The Goring

Back from The War

So we have moved to the late 1940's! Music abounds everywhere to lift our spirits after the war.

Frank Sinatra, Louis Armstrong, Nat King Cole and Bing Crosby are all singing and swinging. Clark Gable and Charlie Chaplin are gracing our screens and the Jitterbug has made its way over the waters from the States and is causing uproar in our dancing clubs!

Although the Olympic Games were cancelled twice this decade at last they have come to London.

We will probably not get them again until the 21st Century.

Also there is a new invention for the kitchen - a microwave oven.

It is so expensive at the moment and chef says it will never catch on.

London is once again the place to be and you can stay at The Goring (which is still standing, un-harmed, in all its glory) for only £1.03.

Stay for three nights or more in August and you will enjoy one night at the price of 1940s (£1.03 pence).

And don't forget - you are invited to the bar on the first night for a drink at the 1940s rate.
