The Dining Room at The Goring to Relaunch in Spring 2024

London, 22 January 2024: The Dining Room at The Goring is set to relaunch in Spring 2024, following a major refurbishment of both the restaurant and the kitchen at the five-star luxury hotel in Belgravia.

Russell Sage Studio is leading the multimillion-pound redesign of The Dining Room, The Goring's flagship restaurant, which has held one Michelin star since 2016. The new design will have an opulent aesthetic that honours the history of the hotel and the grand proportions of the restaurant, whilst also creating a fresh feel that reflects the exceptional modern British menus created by Executive Chef Graham Squire.

Alongside the redesign of the restaurant, a new state-of-the-art kitchen will be installed, including a chef's table that will provide an exclusive guest experience in pride of place on the working pass. The custom-built chef's table will allow up to six guests to dine fully immersed in the buzz of the kitchen.

Notes to Editors

The Dining Room at The Goring is currently closed for the refurbishment. Further details and dates of the relaunch to be announced in due course.

During this time, guests can dine in The Veranda for breakfast, afternoon tea, a selection of light bites and classic dishes for dinner. The Bar is also open for all-day dining.

About The Goring

The Goring was opened in 1910 by Otto Goring and is now the only five-star luxury hotel in London that is owned and run by the family that built it. Deep in the heart of Belgravia, close to Buckingham Palace, The Goring is within strolling distance of the Royal Parks and some of the city's finest shops, theatres and galleries. In January 2013 The Goring was granted a Royal Warrant of appointment to HM The Queen for Hospitality Services and in 2016 The Dining Room was awarded its first Michelin
